IN THE UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

APPLICANT: Daniel Seguin

GROUP: 3679

SERIAL NO.: 10/784,385

EXAMINER: Dunwoody, Aaron M.

FILED: February 23, 2004

FOR: PIPETTE STABILIZER

Commissioner for Patents
P.O. Box 1450
Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

RESPONSE

This is in response to the office action mailed on May 26, 2005.

The examiner has correctly noted that the device in Pepicelli et al. lacks the claimed stabilizer member. As such, Pepicelli is equivalent to the prior art illustrated in Figure 1 of the present application, where smaller diameter pipettes would wobble uncontrollably after their proximate ends are inserted into the resilient sleeve contained within the nose of the pipetter.

The examiner then reaches to Smith for an alleged teaching of the stabilizing member. But Smith has no such teaching.

Instead, Smith teaches the use of filtered tips mounted at the opposite distal ends of the pipettes. There is not the slightest suggestion in Smith that such filtered tips might be employed in some fashion to stabilize the pipettes at locations adjacent to their proximate ends, where they are inserted into the stepped resilient sleeve contained within the pipetter nose.

In point of fact, that teaching can only be obtained from the present application, which suggests that the examiner has succumbed to the temptation to employ hindsight after he has read the specification of the present application.

In summary, therefore, it is respectfully suggested that a fair reading of the teachings of Pepicelli and Smith would not lead the man skilled in the art to address the pipette wobbling problem by employing a stabilizing member in accordance with the present invention.

The other references have been considered and found to be even less pertinent than those relied upon by the examiner.

The examiner's objection to the specification is not understood. It would seem that the language at Page 4, lines 15-18 provide adequate support for the subject matter claimed in Claim 5.

In light of the foregoing, it is now believed that this application is in condition for allowance, and such action is earnestly solicited.

Respectfully submitted,

---
